EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Every photograph on Amorielli is licensed and credited.

All 207 third-party photographs the magazine publishes carry a complete, visible credit; a live check of the production site on 3 September 2026 confirmed each one renders on the page. No image is uncredited.

COMPLIANT

187 attribution-required photographs each carry a complete TASL credit — title, author, named-and-linked licence, source — rendered on the image itself and verified live. 20 further images are public-domain or CC0 (no attribution required). Zero uncredited or at-risk images.

207 PHOTOGRAPHS PUBLISHED	187 CREDITED & VERIFIED LIVE	20 PUBLIC-DOMAIN / CC0 (EXEMPT)	0 UNCREDITED OR AT-RISK
---	--	---	---

This report is the standing evidence that Amorielli sources its photography lawfully. Every photograph the magazine did not create itself comes from Wikimedia Commons under an open licence, is downloaded and self-hosted (never hot-linked), and renders its full credit as a label on the photograph — the strongest, most durable form of attribution. The register on the following pages lists every image with its credit and a live-verified mark.

SUBJECT amorielli.com	METHOD Automated per-image audit + live render check
STANDARD Creative Commons attribution (TASL), visible on-image	REFERENCE AMR-ICC-2026-0903 · 3 September 2026

THE STANDARD WE MEET

What a lawful credit requires, and how we render it.

TASL A complete credit carries four things.

Creative Commons BY and BY-SA licences make attribution a condition of the licence — omit it and the use is unlicensed. A complete credit names the Title, the Author, the Source (a link to the original file), and the Licence, named and linked to its deed. Because we resize and crop images to fit the page, each credit also notes the modification.

RENDERED The credit is visible on the image, not hidden in a file.

A credit recorded only in metadata, an alt attribute, or a separate page is, by Creative Commons' own guidance, no credit. Amorielli renders each credit as a small label layered on the photograph itself, so it travels with the work — it survives a screenshot, a redesign, or a page being split up. A central /credits/ register lists every image as well.

SELF-HOSTED Every image is downloaded, never hot-linked.

Photographs are copied to Amorielli's own servers rather than linked from another site, so nothing breaks or silently changes, and the credit can never be separated from the file.

A note on the 55 older-licence images

55 photographs are under CC 2.x licences, which carry no automatic cure period. Each of these is credited in the strongest on-image form, which is the most defensible reading of the licence — so the older version is not a weakness here.

EVIDENCE · AS IT RENDERS LIVE

The credit on the photograph.

Captured from the live site on 3 September 2026. The complete TASL credit sits in the corner of each photograph, the licence linked to its deed.

A Portfolio photograph — the credit reads title · author · CC BY-SA 4.0 · cropped, layered on the image.

OWN IMAGERY

What the magazine makes itself.

Beyond the licensed photographs above, Amorielli publishes imagery it creates in-house: the issue cover art, the contributor portraits, and the illustrations in The Wire news section. These are original, AI-assisted studio images made for the magazine. They require no third-party licence, and the magazine never presents one as a photograph of a specific, named property — a rule stated plainly on the About page and in each issue's colophon.

STANDING This is monitored, not a one-off.

The audit that produced this report runs against the live site. Any image added later that lacks a complete rendered credit is caught before it can become a liability, and this report is re-issued.

Attestation

As of 3 September 2026, every one of the 207 photographs published on amorielli.com is either licensed for use with its complete attribution rendered visibly on the page and verified live, or is in the public domain. Reference AMR-ICC-2026-0903. Prepared by Cavmir. Questions: legal@cavmir.com.
